PROGRAM:

A Guardian Angel holds an integral role in the rescue process by being a special friend to a animal companion. By being a Guardian Angel you are providing a canine companion the extra attention and love that he/she longs for until placed in a permanent home. During the transition phase rescued dogs require constant emotional support and exercise. A Guardian Angel must provide a nurturing atmosphere that includes exercise, but most importantly love; it takes a special person who can provide all of those for a rescued dog until a permanent home is found. Some dogs may also require special attention, such as increasing weight or strength, socialization, trust building, etc. Guardian Angels can also contribute immensely in placing rescued dogs in appropriately matched homes by observing their dog's personality traits. This information is vital in placing dogs in the right home. Should Guardian Angels be interested in adopting their canine they will be asked to fill out an adoption application. Guardian Angels will be given a "first right to refusal" if they are equally as qualified as the outside interested parties.
